DETAILED ACTION

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 102

1. The following is a quotation of the appropriate paragraphs of 35 U.S.C. 102 that form the basis for the rejections under this section made in this Office action:

A person shall be entitled to a patent unless -

- (e) the invention was described in (1) an application for patent, published under section 122(b), by another filed in the United States before the invention by the applicant for patent or (2) a patent granted on an application for patent by another filed in the United States before the invention by the applicant for patent, except that an international application filed under the treaty defined in section 351(a) shall have the effects for purposes of this subsection of an application filed in the United States only if the international application designated the United States and was published under Article 21(2) of such treaty in the English language.
- 2. Claims 1-4 and 6 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 102(b) as being anticipated by U.S. Pat. No. 6,314,452 to Dekel et al (hereinafter Kekel).
- 3. Reference to claim 1, Dekel teaches a method for document viewing comprising the steps of (abstract):
- a) a client-side device (client computer 110) requesting a section of a document (ROI) from a server-side device (Imaging server 120) and said server-side device receiving said request (see abstract, Fig.1 and 2. Dekel teaches requesting ROI from the server and the server receiving the request for ROI);
- b) the server-side device (server 120) retrieving the requested document, and identifying in the retrieved document the requested section (ROI) (see, col. 4, line 62 col. 5, line 10; Dekel teaches identifying ROI by checking if the corresponding data block exists in the cache 121, if not, the sever 120 then computes the data block, stores it in the cache 121);

Art Unit: 2157

- c) the server-side device converting the identified section into a wavelet compressed image (abstract and col. 25, line 9 22, Dekel teaches encodes using wavelet to compressed image);
- d) the server-side device communicating said wavelet compressed image to the client-side device (abstract, Fig. 1-2 and col. 4, line 51 col. 5, line 9, Dekel discloses sending the preprocessed ROI to the client);
- e) the client-side device decompressing said received wavelet compressed image (abstract, Dekel discloses the client computer performs decoding); and
- f) the client-side device displaying the decompressed document section requested (abstract, Fig.1 and 2 and col. Col. 15, line 15 col. 16, line 9, Dekel teaches GUI for displaying).
  - 4. Regarding claim 2, Dekel teaches a method as in claim 1 further comprising the step of repeating steps a-f until said requests are terminated by the client-side device col. 4, line 1 col. 5, line 10 and col. 15, line 15 col. 16, line 9).
  - 5. Reference to claim 3, Dekel teaches method as in claim 1 wherein wavelet compression is said done in accordance with a JPEG2000 standard (col. 26, line 1 8).
  - 6. As to claim 4, Dekel discloses a method as in claim 1 wherein communication between said client-side device and said server-side device is done over a wireless link (col. 4, lines 11 –14).

Art Unit: 2157

7. As to claim 6, Dekel teaches a method as in claim 1 wherein said requested document section encompasses the entire document (abstract and col. 22. lines 39 – col. 23, lines 7, Dekel inherently teaches this limitations because ROI could be the entire document based on the user specification).

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 103

- 8. The following is a quotation of 35 U.S.C. 103(a) which forms the basis for all obviousness rejections set forth in this Office action:
  - (a) A patent may not be obtained though the invention is not identically disclosed or described as set forth in section 102 of this title, if the differences between the subject matter sought to be patented and the prior art are such that the subject matter as a whole would have been obvious at the time the invention was made to a person having ordinary skill in the art to which said subject matter pertains. Patentability shall not be negatived by the manner in which the invention was made.

Claim 5 is rejected under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) as being unpatentable over Dekel. Although the system discloses by Dekel shows substantial features of the claimed invention (discussed above), it fails to teach said client-side device is a handheld device.

Nonetheless Dekel does teach that the network could be a wireless network (See col. 4, line 11 – 14). Having the teachings of Dekel it would have been obvious for a person having ordinary skill in the art at the time of the invention to replace Dekel client computer with a handheld device in order to increase user flexibility.

Conclusion

9. The prior art made of record and not relied upon is considered pertinent to applicant's disclosure.
